The Joint D scussion, Much interest is being manifested in proposed joint discussion between Democrats and the Populists at the Fair next month, and considerable portance is attached to the idea as a wing card for the Exposition.

The executive committee of the Agri-stural Society some days ago wrote Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, chairman of State Democratic Committee, and Mr. H. Pierson, chairman of the State pulist Committee, asking their views. Mr. Ellyson replied and accepted the in-liation for the Democratic party, and amed the conditions to govern the de-

AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

The Race Course Has Been Put in Fine Order_Other Improvements.

The race track at the Fair Grounds is in splendid condition. It has recently been smoothed down with road machines and put in perfect order.

The soil is said to be peculiarly adapted to the purpose, and horsemen pronounce it the best haif mile track in the jountry. Twenty-three horses are now in training on the grounds for the gentlemen races. A fence has been placed around the A fence has been placed around the adgest stand to keep off the crowd which usually rang all over the lower railings, and the old reporters' stand, which was much complained of by the grand stand as an obstruction to the occupants there-

EVILS OF FREE MEDICAL RELIEF. How London Dispensaries Tend to Drag Down Many Otherwise Good People. Gratis medical relief tends to pauperize in definite ways. The out patients begin by getting physic and presently get food, and the system "leads them afterward openly to solicit pecuniary aid." This vitiating effect is proved by the fact that during the 40 years from 1830 to 1860 the increase in the number of hospital patients. crease in the number of hospital patients has been five times greater than the increase of population, and as there has not been more disease the implication is obvious.

Moreover, the promise of advice for noth-ing attracts the mean spirited to the extent that "the poor are now being gradually ousted out of the consulting room by well to do persons." People of several hundreds a year, even up to a thousand, apply as out patients, going in disguise, 20 per cent of the out patients in one large hospital hav-ing "given false addresses" for the purpose of concealing their identity.

Swarming as patients thus do, it results that each gets but little attention, a minute being the average for each, sometimes being diminished to 45 seconds. Thus those for whom the gratis advice is intended get but little. Often "assistance given is merely nominal" and "is both a deception on the public and a fraud upon the poor."

These gratuitous medical benefits, such as they are, "are conferred chiefly by the members of the unpaid professional staffs" of these charities. Some of them prescribe at the rate of 318 patients in 3 hours and 20 minutes—a process sufficiently exhausting for men already hard worked in their private practice and sufficiently disheartening to men with little private practice, who thus give without payment aid which other wise they would get payment for very much needed by them.
So that the 5000,000 a year of the metropolitan hospitals, which, if the annual value of the lands and buildings occupied were added, would reach very nearly £1,000,-000, has largely the effect of demoralizing the patients, taking medical care from those it was intended for and giving it to those whom it was not, and obliging many cunious doctors and surgeons to work hard for nothing.

These various experiences, then, furnished by societies and institutions sup-ported by voluntary gifts and subscriptions unite to show that whatever benefits flow from them are accompanied by grave evils —evils sometimes greater than the benefits. They force on us the truth that, be it compulsory or noncompulsory, social machin-ery wastes power and works other effects than those intended. In proportion as beneficence operates indirectly instead of directly it fails in its end.—Herbert Spencer in Popular Science Monthly.

The Reading of Janvier's Poem.

An incident related by the late actor Murdoch is very characteristic of Abraham Lincoln. Few who lived through the war have yet forgotten the poem of the "Sleeping Sentinei," which was written by Jan vier in commemoration of an act of clemency by Lincoln in pardoning a young Vermont volunteer at the very moment when he had been led out to be shot for sleeping at his post. The first public reading of this poem by Mr. Murdoch took place at the White House, the president, the poet and a large assembly being present. Before reading the verses aloud Mr. Murdoch pri-vately pointed out to Mr. Janvier a slight poetic license, where he had described the arrival of the president with the pardon as being accompanied by the sounds of rolling wheels, whereas Lincoln had ridden on horseback to the place of execution.

Janvier thought it a matter of very trifling consequence, and the reading pro-At its close the president and many of the party were in tears. "Oh, well, Mr. Lincoln," said Senator Foote of Vermont, "we all know you would have gone on foot if it had bee necessary." "Yes, but the fact is I went on horseback," insisted Mr. Lincoln,—Bos ton Transcript.

The Andaman Dwarfs.

There probably never was a boy or girl who did not dream of possessing for his or her own pleasure a band of pygmies who should do what they were bidden like so many animated dolls. Dwarfs have been found in Africa, but the natives of the Andaman islands, in the bay of Bengal, are the smallest race of people in the world. The average height of a full grown Andaman is 4 feet 5 inches, and few weigh over 76 pounds. They are marvelously swift of foot, and as they smear themselves over with a mixture of oil and red ocher present a very strange appearance. Few travelers care to encounter any of the warlike little people, for their skill in throwing the spear and in using the bow is only equaled by their readiness to attack strangers.

Altogether their traits are not such as to make them desirable additions to the playrooms of children, since they have been said to eat men alive. They are as black as coals and seem to find it desirable to tattoo themselves. This artistic venture they usually begin when they are 8 years of age, using bottle glass for the purpose of getting their flesh into a condition to receive the color and retain it. They eat fish, turtles and wild honey and are rarely satisfied with a luncheon that does not provide them with six pounds of eatables. They live in huts made of leaves and in spite of their freedom, which amounts to wildness, are exceedingly irritable. - Harper's Young

COUNSEL TO MEN OF LARGE AFFAIRS.

During such a period of financial disturbance as the present, you find it necessary to concentrate all your talents and energies on the management of your affairs.

You cannot safely delegate the work to another. At this time any one else, no matter what his ability, would be unable to successfully conduct your business, or protect your investments, as well as you can.

But there is a CHANCE that you may at any moment be FORCED thus to turn your affairs over to the management of another-namely, in the event of your death. Remember that executors often think more about avoiding risks and protecting themselves than of carrying out the spirit of the testator's views. They generally lack experience in the business they are trying to

This inexperience and possible lack of interest may cost ten or fifteen per cent. of the value of your estate,

You cannot but recognize the truth of this statement; nevertheless, you can guard against this loss by assuring your life for the amount which in your judgment your executors would waste in winding up your estate.

You can easily, by economizing a little in your living expenses, pay from your income the premium on a policy for $50,000 or $100,000, issued by the strongest financial institution of its kind in the world, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, 120 Broadway, New York.

If you then chance to die, your executor will be INSTANTLY in the possession of $50,000 or $100,000 of CASH IN HAND; and ready money will have a FOURFOLD value if DEATH COMES.

On the other hand, if you live, and take your assurance (for example) on the twenty-year Tontine Endowment plan, you will Yourself reap a rich reward on maturity of the policy.

The following is an illustration of one out of many such policies maturing in 1893:

LETTER FROM A POLICY-HOLDER IN THE EQUITABLE. In response to your request that I should give you for publica-n the results of Policy No. 81,524, which matured June 2, 1893,

In response to your request that I should give you for publication the results of Policy No. 81,524, which matured June 2, 1893, I beg to make the following statement:

The policy was for $1,000, issued twenty years ago on the Endowment plan. The amount paid in premiums was $953.60.

Among other options the following methods of cettlement are

First—Cash surrender value, $1,597.04; equal to a return of all the premiums paid, with interest exceeding 6 per cent. per anum. Second—A paid-up policy of life assurance for $3,858. Third-A life annuity of $112.58.

R. J. RILLY, June 2, 1893. N. B.—The writer of the above letter has applied to the Equi-
